conservation through more effective collaborations

WILLAMETTE PARTNERSHIP

DEAR FRIENDS,

The natural resources challenges that face our communities today have no simple solution, and they cannot be met by a single person or organization. They require us to come together in new ways, across public and private sectors, to build alternatives that are more equitable, sustainable, and pragmatic. To face these challenges, we will all have to learn to solve tough problems together.

Willamette Partnership is a regional and national leader in building collaborations that work. We invite you to explore some of the stories and people we're proud of.

WHY WE WORK

mission

Willamette Partnership is working to increase the pace, scope, and effectiveness of restoration and conservation to create benefits for both natural and human communities.

vision

Willamette Partnership envisions a world in which people create resilient ecosystems, healthy communities, and vibrant economies by investing in nature. We are building a future in which people understand and value the benefits nature provides.

equity in the outdoors

In 2019, we grew our adaptive camping pilot into 5 events throughout the summer, reaching over 80 people with disabilities and their families. The video we made of the pilot project also helped secure $500,000 from the OR State Legislature for accessibility improvements in State Parks, making our public lands more inclusive for everyone.

meeting people's needs with nature

We're working with the Pure Water Partners in the McKenzie River watershed in Oregon to scale up their innovative watershed protection and restoration collaborative. This collaborative will help provide clean drinking water to residents of Eugene at a lower cost, while also providing a broader set of benefits to people and nature than traditional treatment technologies. We're proud to support this community-led effort to balance economic growth, environmental protection, and water affordability.

community resilience that starts with health

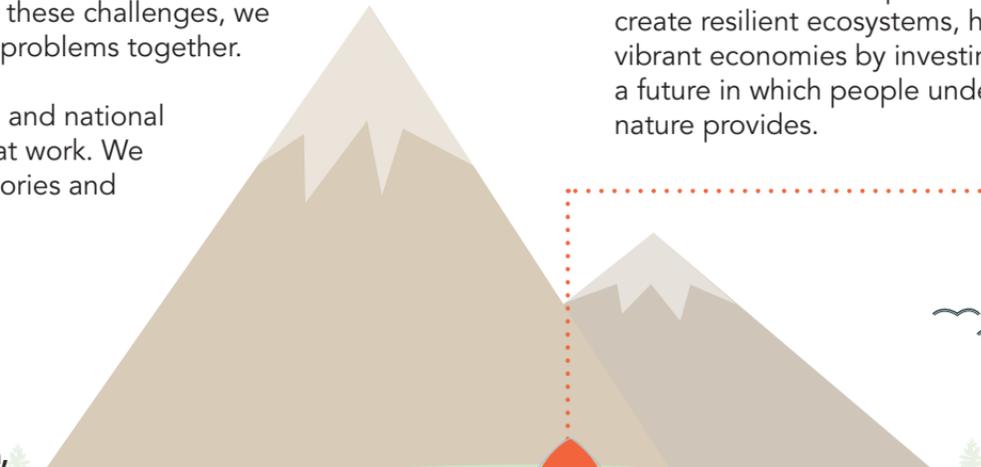

This year, the Partnership helped launch Shift Health Accelerator as part of a co-op with a number of Robert Wood Johnson Foundation Culture of Health Leaders. The Accelerator is designed to attract capital to community-based work on health equity across the country. We're helping support food sovereignty in Hawaii, healthy infrastructure in Seattle, and economic inclusion in Central Oregon.

saving oak in partnership

The greatest threat we have to oak habitat right now is not the logging of individual trees, but the wholesale conversion of oak to other uses. Building a market for oak products that come from sustainably managed forests will create value, and that value will ideally incentivize land-owners to maintain working forests that include oak. To help build this forest to market connection, Sustainable Northwest Wood partnered with the Oak Accord in 2019 and is donating 10% of their proceeds from sales of Oregon white oak to our on-the-ground restoration projects.
